TECHNOLOGY & PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Delta Air Lines, Data Analytics and AI Intern, Atlanta, GA May - August 2026

- Identified sprint management bottlenecks across 5 teams (45+ developers) through deep Agile/Scrum methodology expertise and team collaboration, designed and built an AI-powered automation toolkit reducing manual overhead by 5–8 hours per sprint per Scrum Master
- Built a Sprint Operations Dashboard (Python/Flask) with 9 one-click reports, including standup prep, sprint closeout, capacity heatmaps, estimation accuracy, and burndown, replacing 30+ minutes of daily manual tool navigation and enforcing data accuracy across the sprint, driving a management-initiated review of team estimation practices
- Engineered a Release Readiness Dashboard adopted by the release manager and 5 team leads, reducing pre-release status assessment from 30+ minutes of manual tool queries to one click via real-time progress tracking, at-risk flagging, and multi-team filtering
- Developed a QA Dashboard with 8 reports leveraging Digital.ai Agility's History API: detecting stories that bypassed QA via status history analysis, identifying regression candidates by cross-referencing recently shipped and in-progress work, and generating structured test cases from acceptance criteria via a paired AI agent
- Created 15+ AI agents that generate leadership-ready documents (sprint reports, release notes, executive PowerPoint decks, increment plans) from natural language commands, eliminating hours of manual report-building
- Designed a sustainable AI architecture using 15+ markdown steering files as persistent context, eliminating repetitive prompting and reducing token usage across all agent interactions; led AI adoption across the teams via onboarding documentation and distribution infrastructure enabling toolkit use without ongoing developer support
